Your rights at work

The information in this activity kit is based on the CLEO publication called Your rights at work. Please take note

Ontario's Employment Standards Act (ESA) is a law that outlines the rights of employees and the responsibilities of employers. The ESA sets minimum standards for working conditions. Many employers offer better.

The information in these activities applies to most but not all workers. Not all jobs are covered by the ESA, and in some cases only parts of the ESA apply. Some industries, such as banks, airlines, trucking, and broadcasting, are regulated by the federal government.

Immigration status does not matter. You do not need to be a Canadian citizen, permanent resident, or holder of a work permit to be covered by the ESA.

The information in these activities is not a substitute for legal advice. Every situation is different so learners with concerns should get legal help. They can contact their local community legal clinic. To find the nearest community legal clinic, go to Legal Aid Ontario's website at legalaid.on.ca/legal-clinics or call Legal Aid Ontario toll-free at 1-800-668-8258.

Isabel's hours of work (page 2-4)

Before reading the story, learners can look at the picture and talk about what they see. You can write the words they know on the board. You can ask learners what they know about hours of work, breaks, and days off. You can read the story as a class. More advanced learners can read the story individually and then answer the questions below. They can check their answers with a partner.

You may want to instruct learners to circle or underline categories of words (for example, they could underline the job words, circle the time words, and put a check mark above the numbers) for reinforcement.

The next few activities are literacy activities.

C. You can elicit that the missing letters are vowels and point out that some are one of two-letter vowels. Learners can circle the vowel sounds that are spelled with two letters.

You can ask learners what the first four words have in common and ask them to put the words in order from smallest amount of time to largest. You can point out that the days are in alphabetical order and ask learners to put them in chronological order.

D. You can elicit what makes the different words different. Learners can write their own similar activity and exchange with a partner.

E. Learners can read the story Isabel's hours of work again to confirm their answers. You can elicit why some of the answers are plural.

F. This activity provides an opportunity to review telling time. Learners can find the answers to questions 1-3 in the story Isabel's hours of work. Questions 4 and 5 are designed to address confusion some learners may have about what 2:00 - 10:30 p.m. means. It may be helpful to precede this part of the activity by writing 2:00 - 10:30 p.m. on the board and asking learners: "Is Isabel at work at 3:00 p.m.?" "4:00 p.m.?" Learners can then choose the correct clocks in questions 4 and 5 and write the numbers on the line.

Answers:

5. Isabel is not at work at 1:00 p.m. - a

This activity reinforces the importance of keeping good records. You can elicit that this involves recording hours, keeping documents such as pay stubs, reconciling one's own records with pay stubs, and hanging on to them in case there's a mistake.

Learners can read the calendar and you can ask them questions about it. You can point out that Isabel could write 2:00 - 10:30 p.m. and discuss when it would be necessary to include a.m. or p.m. You may wish to include questions such as "Is Isabel at work at 3:00 p.m.?" to confirm that learners understand what 2:00 - 10:30 p.m. represents.

In Section B, you read the following calendar aloud and learners transcribe.

22	23	24	25	26	27	28
Off	Off	2:00-10:30	2:00-10:30	2:00-10:30	2:00-10:30	2:00-10:30
		8 hours	8 hours	8 hours	8 hours	8 hours

Explain what a pay stub (or statement of wages) is and that her employer must give Isabel her pay stub on or before her payday. See the ESL activity kit Laws about pay CLB 1 for an activity involving a closer look at the components of a pay stub.

Answers:

C. No. She worked 80 hours but was paid for only 72.

Report a mistake

You can write the conversation on the board instead of using a handout. Learners practise the conversation in pairs. You may want to discuss what Isabel can do next. You may wish to have the whole class write a conversation between Isabel and her boss. If Isabel's boss is not receptive to her concerns, Isabel should get legal help.

Extension: Brainstorm a list of other possible mistakes on pay stubs (name, pay period, rate of pay, total hours, total wages). Learners can work with a partner and practise completing the conversation, substituting different mistakes. You may want to write the following on the board as a guide.

Worker: There's a mistake on my pay stub.

Co-worker: What is it?

Worker: My _____ is / are wrong.

Co-worker: Talk to the _____.

Worker: Good idea.

Complete the calendar
(pages 7-8)

This is an activity that provides speaking and listening practice. The two weeks from the calendar show Min's hours of work for July 8-21, 2018. This activity further reinforces the importance of recording hours as part of keeping good records. It may be helpful to learners if you write Min's hours of work for one day on the board ("Monday, 9:00 a.m. - 5:30 p.m., 8 hours") and elicit that Min's break is unpaid.

Each learner works with a partner. One learner has Complete the calendar – A and the other has Complete the calendar – B. You can use the calendar in the upper right hand corner of the handout, or a larger calendar you may have in your class, to explain that there are two weeks from the month of July 2018 on their handouts.

Learners take turns asking and answering questions, working together to complete the missing information on their calendars. Encourage them to do this without looking at each other's handouts. When they're finished, they can compare calendars and check their answers.

You may wish to introduce the model for asking and answering questions before distributing the handout:

Question: What are Min's hours on July ____th?

Answer: ____ a.m. to ____ p.m.

You may also wish to review the difference between the pronunciation of cardinal and ordinal numbers.
